In this manual, we'll explain all you need to know to play the game Just One More as our founding fathers intended

1. Start your new game
2. If you already have an existing game you saved, you can get back to it
3. Customize player controls and volume of the game.

   Default controls are:
   - W - move up
   - S - move down
   - A - move left
   - D - move right
   - Left mouse button - shoot/attack
   - Space - dash in a direction you're moving (needs to be unlocked through shop)
   - ESC - pause menu*
4. Close the game (save files persists until new overwrite)

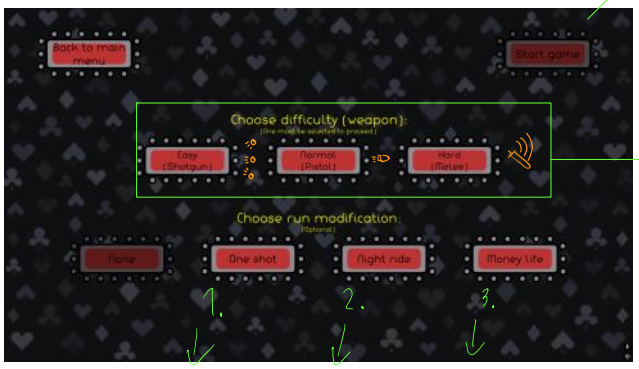
When you select new game, you enter a run modification tab. You select your weapon of choice and with an option for extra mutators for additional challenge

When you select your weapon, press this to start the game

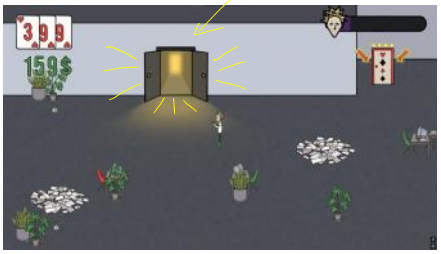


Difficulty is tied directly to the weapon you chose, scaling the challenge from a forgiving Shotgun to a punishing Melee experience.

1. You take one hit -> your run ends.
2. Your field of vision is limited by a cone around your mouse cursor
3. The money you collect and pay with to enter the casino is literally your health bar, spend wisely

After you start the game, you enter the first of 3 floors.
Each floor has unique enemies tied to their environment and they get strong FAST!
Enemies come at you in waves, where the end of a wave is indicated by a ringing bell sound.

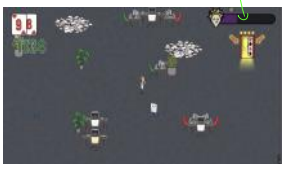
When you defeat all waves, a "ding" sound plays to indicate that the elevator to the next floor is unlocked.



Now to explain the HUD.

- When your health reaches 0, the game ends, showing your time. (don't let them touch you)
- Defeating enemies creates money the player can pickup. Tougher enemies drop more money
- Once enough money is collected, you can enter the casino to upgrade yourself, but be prepared you can also downgrade yourself when you lose in minigames.
- Insanity meter punishes the player when they don't bet enough. Keep it low

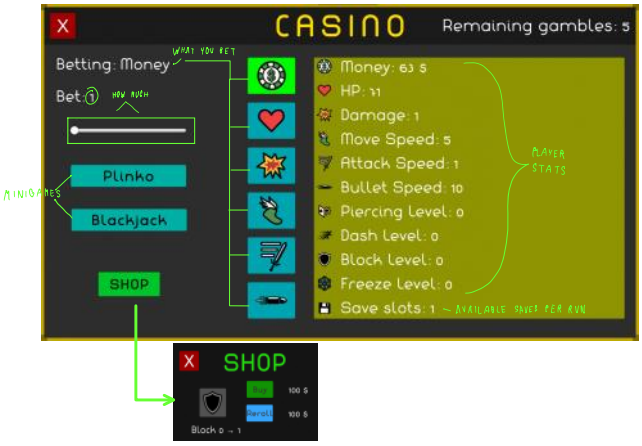
(casino shining when enough money is accumulated)



And finally to the Casino itself!

In this game, every single stat can be gambled.
But choose wisely, one casino entry gives you 5 chances to *upgrade yourself

*not guaranteed, all rights reserved



At any point in the game, if your health hits 0, it's game over.
That even includes gambling. YES, you can die if you lose all your health in a bet.

- In Plinko, a ball is dropped down a board with rows of pegs in it. Falling down into a bucket with a set multiplier of player's bet (ranging from 5x to -0.5x).
  Player has 3 delayed shunts/dashes to manipulate where the ball drops.
  Lose additional 50% on top of what player risked in bet

- In Blackjack, it's double or nothing (what you had bet). The player needs to end his turn with higher value of his hand than the dealers, but he shan't go over 21. Aces can score 11 or 1 depending on if the player would exceed the limit. K ,Q ,J score for 10. If player has higher card value than the dealer, he wins. In case of a draw, the player gets his bet back.

Tips and Tricks:

1. You can block enemy projectiles with your own projectiles.
   The best defense is offense as they say.
2. Some stats can't go below 1. Keep that in mind when you go all in.
3. Spawners create new enemies that you can then farm for money endlessly.
4. In blackjack, the dealers way of playing doesnt change depending on when the player stops his turn, he draws until he has >= 17 in his hand
5. Be sure to be prepared for following floors as they really tend to get more difficult. It is recommended that you upgrade all your stats at least once.
